trial judge to impose upon the defendant the penalties prescribed by law, and the sentence imposed here was well within the limits fixed by statute. As to defendant's contention that his sentence is excessive, the trial judge stated that he had carefully weighed the punishment and that he had closely considered the defendant's criminal record. The trial judge is in a much better position than we are to determine the punishment which would be appropriate. Here, we see no reason why the sentence imposed should be disturbed. Affirmed. All the Judges concur.

First Cinemalaya Film Award for the best director
The First Cinemalaya Film Award for the best Director was given by the first edition of the Cinema of the Philippines Festival (now as the Metro Manila Film Festival) to the director of the best film of the year. Winners and nominees

From 1994 to 1998, this category was split into three separate categories: Best Director for Feature Films, Best Director for Midnight Features, and Best Director for TV/Video productions. However, in 1999, this category was split again to recognize achievement in both feature films and television/video productions.

Best Director for Feature Films
Best Director for Midnight Features
