If you don't have connection, you can still use the offline installer (related to performance on a test of executive functioning in brain-damaged patients. Research indicates that many brain-damaged patients fail to recognize that they are or are not following speech and that they are or are not executing the correct response. This paper reports results of a study designed to investigate two hypotheses: (1) that the rate of execution errors observed in clinical data is related to performance on a test of executive functioning, and (2) that the rate of sentence execution errors observed in clinical data is related to performance on a test of cognitive organization. The factors that correlated with these errors were studied using a regression analysis. It was found that the response time for recognizing violations in the flow of speech and in prosody predicted the rate of execution errors. The profile of impairment related to cognitive organization also predicted the rate of sentence execution errors. However, other factors were responsible for the majority of variance in sentence execution errors. These errors were found to be associated with perceptual impairment and the length of the sentence being transcribed. Miyazaki Airlines was a Japanese regional airline based in Miyazaki, Japan.
