Minisipserver2.8.1.1. Crack will help your computer to work faster and give you access to the internet..Q: Powershell script works from command line but not from scheduled task I am trying to run a powershell script every 5 minutes in a scheduled task on Windows Server 2012. I am running the script from my local powershell version: C:\PS> But when I run it in the task scheduler on the server, my script never runs. (The task seems to be running since it creates an XML file but this one never gets processed and I do not see any errors.) The task is set to run with the lowest user permissions. When I run the script directly from the powershell console I get this: C:\Users\admin>ps> C:\Users\admin> C:\Users\admin>cd c:\scripts\test C:\scripts\test> C:\scripts\test>test.ps1 Starting with a clean state... C:\scripts\test>exit [DONE] Cleaned up local state at: Thu Apr 5 12:28:14 2016 C:\scripts\test>exit This happens with a few different scripts including a script that creates an XML file from an imported CSV file. I am not very familiar with the script environment and none of the references I found on StackOverflow and Google help me. I am not sure what else to try. A: A good option would be to use the Server Manager, first create a local Powershell-PSRunner on your server, then use the script download button to download the script from a server and install it from
