I have a product component which is made up of different parts.When a user clicks on any part of the component, I want to switch to the component which has the same part to be clicked in. How can I achieve this? A: You can return a Route from your component with the component that should be rendered when the route is selected. Here is a little example: class ProductRoute extends Component { render() { return( ) } } Then you can add another Route when the user clicks on the products part of the component that renders the MyComponent and redirects to this new Route. class Product extends Component { render() { const { product, handleClick } = this.props; return( handleClick('part-1')}>Part 1 handleClick('part-2')}>Part 2
